Ann Van Hoey

“With the Nido collection I believe I have reinvented classic white tableware – Nido is the combination of simple high-quality fine bone china with the modern twist of several graphic patterns.”

Ann Van Hoey has been designing tableware in fine bone china for Serax for over a decade. Always exploring her passion for craft, materials and mathematics, Ann’s design process for her Nido tableware takes inspiration from the geometric forms involved in the digital processes used to generate her moulds.

While creating the computer drawings, she was fascinated by the digital construction lines, developing them into a series of patterns that work in concert as a versatile set. Selecting very fine porcelain fired at high temperatures was crucial for these complex shapes and structures to be made with such accuracy.

When designing the basic forms of her Nido collection, Ann first took into account the stackability of its shapes, an absolute must for the hospitality industry. She also designed a traditional round plate with a generous diameter so that any chef has a surface large enough to present festive dishes.

For the glaze finishes, Ann chose a translucent thin glaze that highlights the character of the flawless white porcelain throughout the set. On other select shapes, she chose a subtle jade-green celadon that adds a warmth when combined with natural white.

NIDO — TABLEWARE

With Nido, Ann Van Hoey has designed a playful and contemporary table setting that expands on the great tradition of high-quality fine bone china tableware. The collection is a seamless expression of materials, craftsmanship and geometric patterns, that resonates with a vibrant energy to make an immediately classic collection for homes and hospitality alike.

NIDO — GLASSWARE

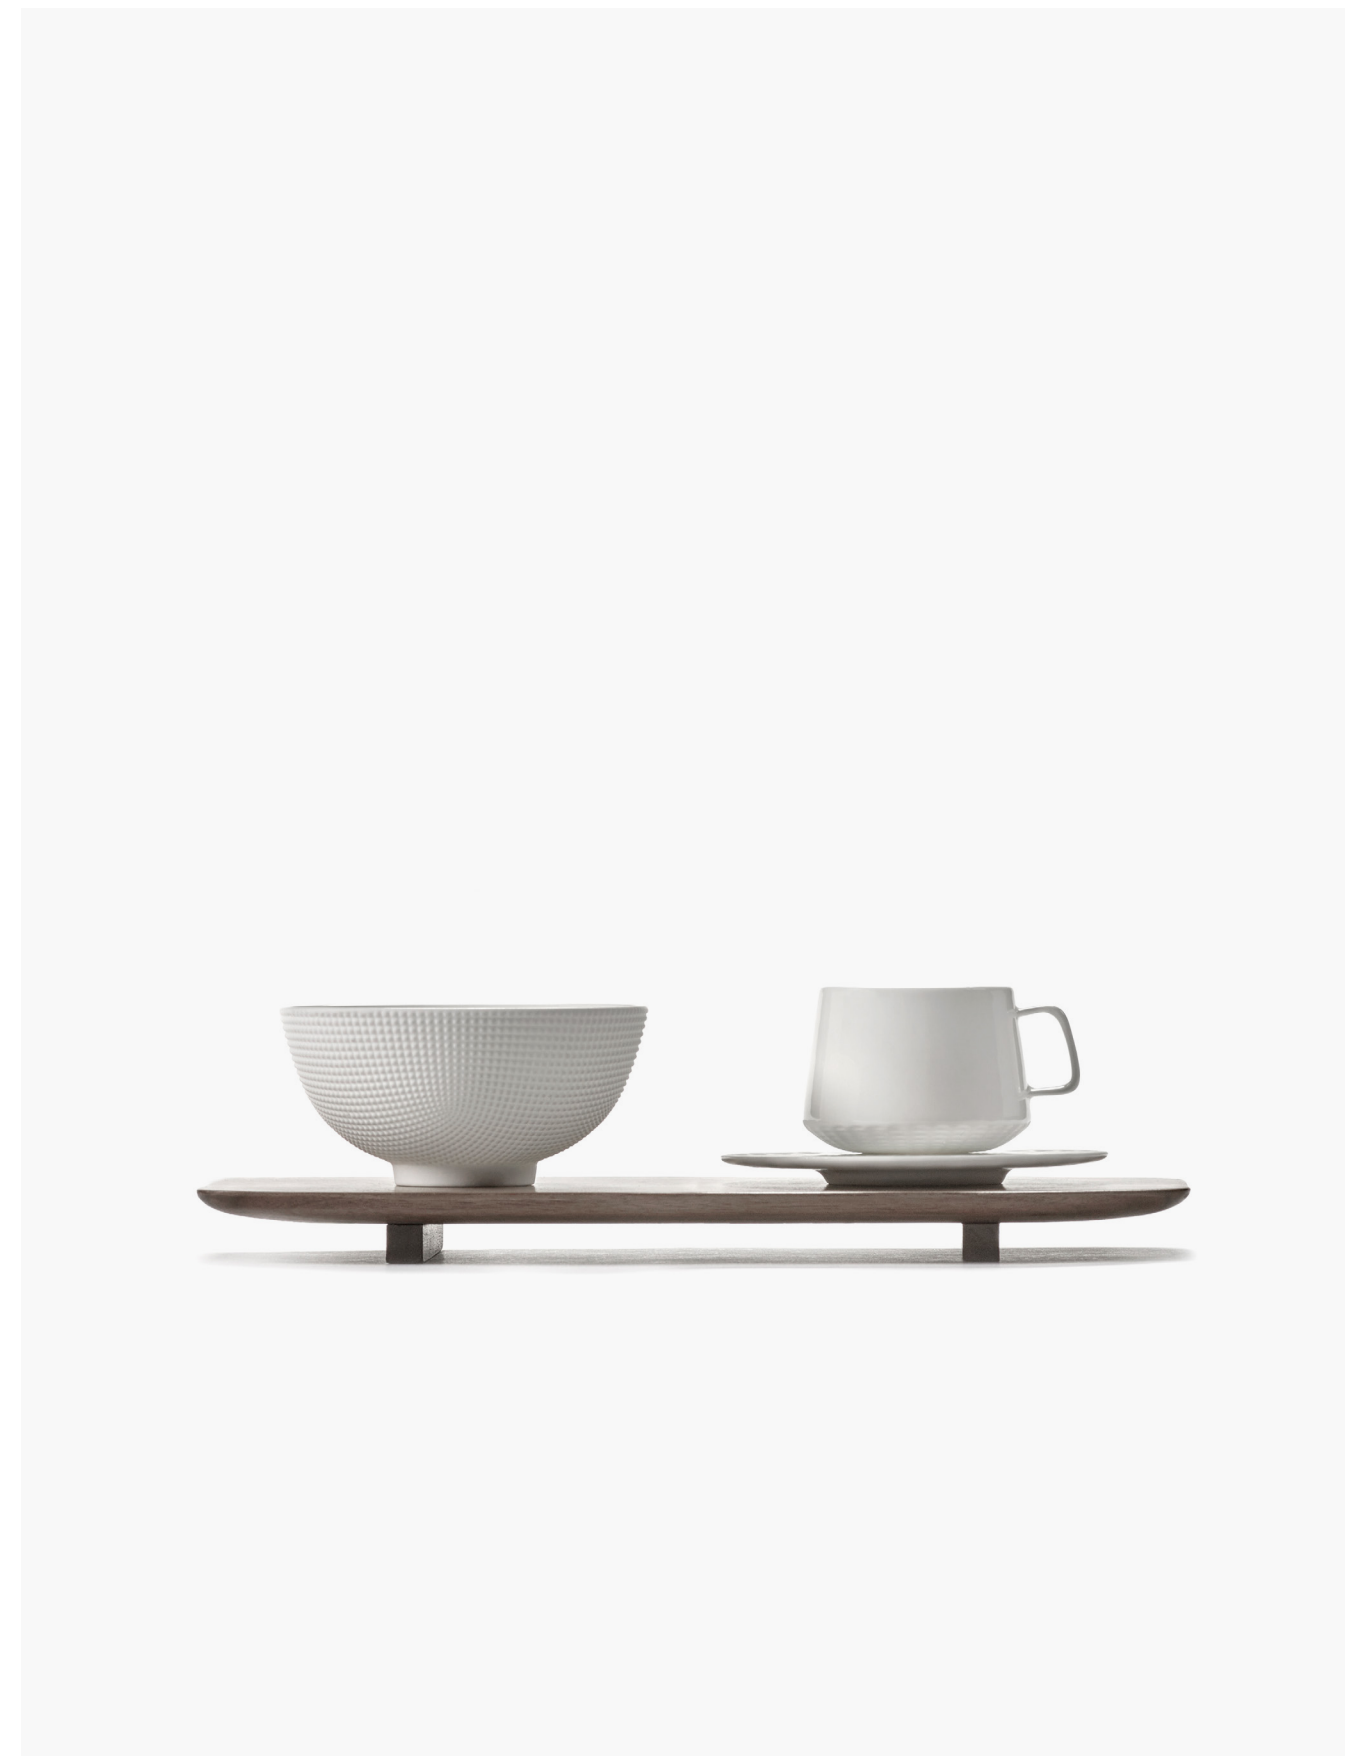

The porcelain tableware is complemented by 4 simple glasses that share the same shapes as the cups. The tumbler, is robust in-hand but refined on table. The coup is a classic saucer shape, ideal for occasions where sparkling wines or cocktails are served. The wine glasses echo the cup and tumbler with an elongated stem and tulip-like shape – perfect for serving any beverage meant to be savoured.

NIDO — WOODEN TRAYS

The simple wooden trays in walnut – inspired by the ancient Japanese Gongfu tea tray – present the porcelain forms in a beautiful contrast of classic materials. Around the edges, the wood is tapered to a fine lip, and at the bottom small feet are provided to make this stable while appearing to float. The tray corners are curved and elongated complimenting the wood grain and further refining the silhouette.

Ann Van Hoey NIDO

A celebration of craftsmanship and fine materials, the Nido collection by Ann Van Hoey reimagines classic white tableware. Produced in high-quality fine bone china, pieces are elevated with modern details using a contrast of graphic patterns. At once classic and contemporary, the variety of shapes in subtle off-white combine to create a fresh and timeless tablesetting.
